- Our membership continues to grow and outpaced our benchmarks

What's to Come

2023 promises to be exciting and engaging. We don't know where the economy will take us, but all signs point to insolvency work picking up.

What we can control is CRA's impact on the profession.

We're continuing to grow and expand our efforts through new outreach, growing into new states, and improving our education. Ultimately, our efforts are focused on on:

Networking

Education

Legislation

Standardization

Our belief is that through these four tenets we will dramatically improve the receivership practice across the country.

Eric Peterson “

In the hands of experts, commercial receivership promises tremendous value to stakeholders. Only through an effectively administered commercial receivership can professionals secure for their clients the combination of transparency, preservation of assets and operations, speed and efficiency. Additionally, it offers the opportunity to tailor company administration to the facts of a given case while also creating the ability to transition to new owners or investors without first impairing business operations. In other words, commercial receivership can be deployed to maintain operations and value for the benefit of all.

2022 Membership

When we started out, our goal was 50 members in our first year. At 57 we were thrilled that we saw such interest and engagement.

Please tell your panelists (Special Issues in a Partnership Dispute) that was one of the best things I have ever attended by Zoom. Props to Sonette (Magnus, Moderator).... I have a 50/50 case right now and it was very comforting that my issue spotting was solid but also they suggested some things that I might find helpful. GREAT PANEL! Insightful and well moderated.

"Ian Rubenstrunk brings a unique skillset to the role of State Director, having spent five years as a US Bankruptcy Court Clerk and five years as an attorney for Winthrop & Weinstine. Ian has recently moved into a role for Alliance Management as a Turnaround Consultant, where he'll operate as a Commercial Receiver," said Sonette Magnus, Vice President of the CRA. "His experience in the court system as an attorney and now as a receiver, was incredibly unique and is seen as a true value to the State Director role."
